Dear Mr. Blum:

You have requested my comments in connection with a bill introduced into the City Council which would change the name of Fort Hamilton Park, No. B 35, to John Paul Jones Park (Intro. No. 755).

It has always been our policy to favor legislation naming parks after those who have distinguished themselves in the areas of parks, recreation and cultural affairs since these are the major concerns of my administration. In addition, we have not opposed legislation naming parks after those who have honorably served their country.

Accordingly, I would not be opposed to the City Council naming the subject park, John Paul Jones Park.

Sincerely yours,

August Heckscher

Dear Mr. Blum:

In re Intro. 735, John Paul Jones Park.

✓ The present name of this park is undistinguished and it is fitting to name a park in this situation for an American naval hero.

In re Intro. 760 Abraham E. Kazan Street.

This law would change one block of Columbia Street and this block is separated from the rest of the street by the underpinning of the Williamsburgh Bridge. The historic name would be retained by the remainder of the street and Mr. Kazan could be honored by this small change. Such change is unexceptionable.
